Max hax - a blog on all things related to computers

On this blog I publish interesting things about computers that I stumble upon. My personal interests cover but are not limited to

- Databases, in particular ArangoDB, of which I am one of the main developers and architects.

- Linux, which I use exclusively for my computers at the moment.

- C/C++, which is the programming language I use most these days

- Performance, in particular of algorithms and implementations on multi-core and multi-host systems

- etc.